Ryerson University says it must cancel journal subscriptions, like MUN is considering

Many universities struggling with rapidly rising subscription costs

By Laura Howells, CBC News | Posted: Dec 13, 2015 9:30 PM NT | Last Updated: Dec 13, 2015 9:30 PM NT

Ryerson University released a statement Friday saying that, with a decreasing base budget, rising subscription costs, and a weak Canadian dollar, it would have to cancel some journal subscriptions. (<https://www.facebook.com/ryersonu/>)

The image shows two hand-painted salmon costumes, one on the left and one on the right, sitting on a black metal mesh bench. Between them is a sign on a metal stand. The sign has the text: "Maker Faire Meet the Makers", "Make Your Own B2B Salmon Run Costumes", and "Trullie McConlogue". The costumes are painted in shades of red, green, and blue, with a white eye and a smiling mouth. The sign also features a small photo of people and some smaller text.

Resubmission

When you have altered your paper in light of the peer reviewer's comments and you have written a covering letter to the editor explaining the changes you made or refuting the reviewer's comments, you are ready to resubmit.

Try to resubmit as soon as you can. Generally, this makes it easier to do as the paper is still fresh in your mind. The scientific world moves very quickly so you want your work published before someone else produces similar work. Once you have resubmitted you will see the status of the paper changed within a specific span of time. If you don't see this or don't receive any acknowledgment of your resubmission, please check with the Editorial staff and confirm the receipt of the article by the Editorial Office.
